Chapter 1 by Emily

A young girl peeks outside from behind the front door of her house. Her mother had always said to never open the door for strangers, but this was no stranger. This was her neighbor. A very old man with a long, gray beard and hard eyes.

"Hi, Mommy's not here," the girl says looking up at the old man.

"Oh, that's okay sweetie. I'm here to see you," he says in a voice that is meant to sound friendly but is too forced. "Wow, you've gotten big. How old are you now?"

"Um..five." She didn't like this man. She wanted him to leave, so she tried to close door. The man just was just so much stronger than her, though, and easily pushed the door open even though she was pushing against with all her might. He slowly looked down and smiled in a very menacing way.
